Black-Connelly Wage-Hour Bill Passed In Senate 56 To 28 After A Lengthy Debate

WASHINGTON, July 31.—Administration forces pushed the revised Black-Connelly wage and hour bill through the Senate today, overcoming defection in Democratic ranks.

A long day of debate and roll calls on amendments neared an end when the Senate defeated, 48 to 36, a motion to send the bill back to the labor committee for further study.

This move was quickly followed by another roll call which passed the bill to the House by a 66 to 28 margin.

Twenty-two Democrats and 11 Republicans voted to recommit the measure a move which would have ended its consideration for the session. One Republican and three independents joined 45 Democrats in defeating that effort.

The measure, one of the major items in President Roosevelt's legislative program for this year, was drafted to accomplish some of the same ends that NIRA once sought to reach.

It would give to an administration board power to fix minimum wages and maximum hours for interstate engaged in interstate commerce. It also would outlaw child labor in trade crossing state lines.

The board could not fix a minimum wage higher than 40 cents an hour or a maximum work week shorter than 40 hours.

A much more drastic bill had been drafted by the House labor committee, permitting the proposed labor standard board to fix minimum wages as high as 70 cents an hour and a work week as low as 35 hours.

The closing hours of a five-day debate saw proponents of the legislation fighting back amendments which would have restricted various regulatory powers contained in the bill.

Among major amendments adopted was the substitution of the Wheeler-Johnson child labor bill for the child labor provisions in the bill.

The Wheeler-Johnson proposal would prevent shipment of child labor goods into a State in violation of the laws of that State in addition to barring such shipments from interstate commerce.

The wage-hour bill contained a simple prohibition against interstate shipments. Both measures fixed the child labor age limit at 16 and in the case of hazardous industries, at 18 years of age.

Chairman Black (D), Alabama, of the Senate labor committee, expressed satisfaction over the form in which the bill passed. He told the Senate the Democratic platform had promised the bill to the people. His usual unflinching candor, Black implied his colleagues to consider the little fellows that are not able to come to Washington.

Directing sarcasm on those who had argued for protection of the small business man, Black said he was interested in the individual worker. Pointing to the reserved galleries, where lobbyists often sit, Black said: "They have no representative there; they're anywhere else, unless it was the man who was taken from the galleries a few minutes ago."

Shortly before he spoke a man giving his name as W. A. Maxwell, of Chicago, had been dragged shouting from the galleries when he attempted to interrupt proceedings by making a speech.

Senator Byrnes (D), South Carolina, appealed to the Senate to recommit the bill on the ground it would harm small business establishments. He said also it would cut farmers' profits by making their purchases more costly.

Senator Connally (D), Texas, who moved to send the measure back to committee, said he was anxious to vote for a bill to regulate hours and wages, but "that doesn't mean I am willing to vote for any bill that has that label on it."

Majority Leader Barkley (D), Kentucky, making his first appeal for a major administration measure, said he was not sure whether all our people are three-fourths of the time or three-fourths of our people are three-fourths of the time and the other one-fourth not work at all, then I choose the former.

After passing the wage-hour bill, the Senate voted to begin debate on the Wagner hobnob bill when it convenes Monday at noon.

One of the closest votes during the day came on a move to attach the Wagner-Van Nuys anti-lynching bill as a rider. It was defeated, 46-50.

The Senate voted to exempt from the regulation of interstate commerce of perishable agricultural products during the harvesting season.

It also expanded the definition of agricultural labor, exempt from all regulation, to include persons engaged in preparation, packing and storing of fresh fruits and vegetables in the area of production in that or near that State.

Employees of express companies were also exempted. They are covered by another law.

An amendment by Senator Bailey (D), North Carolina, to require Senate confirmation of wage-hour board members receiving $4,000 or more a year also was adopted.

GUINEAS FAY—About a year ago, Drayton Smith bought ten guineas and put them on his Baldwin Hill farm, north of town. He reports that since that time they have paid for themselves many times over with the eggs they have laid, to say nothing of the profitable benefit they have been to the cotton crops by destroying tick weevils and other harmful insects. Mr. Smith says that a neighbor had a guinea killed by a car and upon cutting open its carcass, he found it was full of guinea. He thinks every cotton farmer should have a flock of guineas.

LARGE EGG—Frank Donaldson, living near Daley's Cross Road, brought to this office a mammoth Rhode Island Red hen, weighing a quarter of a pound, which would make a dozen such eggs weigh 36 ounces, and measure 6.5 x 7.5 inches in circumference, whereas average eggs of that breed weigh about 20 ounces. The egg is normally shaped and does not appear to be of the double-yolk variety.

TO THE PLUMBER—Leroy, little son of Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Drew, being troubled with sore eyes, his mother, knowing that town Ziegler, little grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Owen, had been suffering with the same ailment, asked Mr. Owen to examine Leroy's eyes. Mr. Owen willingly consented to do so, and when he found there was nothing to be worried about, but the little fellow's eyes continued to grow worse. When one of his eyes was almost shut, Mr. Drew remarked: "Elizabeth, agreed to take Leroy to a doctor but instead, she took him to a plumber. Leroy is going through a severe siege of sore eyes, but it is hoped that he will soon recover."

FREAK CORN—A freak corn, stalk, or to be more exact, four stalks growing from one stalk, is being exhibited at the Smith Bros. store in West Elba. There are four well-developed ears on the four out-growing stalks. The unusual variety was grown by Bill Scarbrough on the Jesse Smith farm. It reminds me of the way they grow corn on the uplands of Missouri—four stalks to the hill, four feet apart each way, making the rows run in four directions.

BIG BOYS—State PWA Director Henderson, of Montgomery, accompanied by two "big boys" from Washington, visited Elba Monday night on a tour of inspection. They called at the J. C. Dixon home and were somewhat disappointed to learn that City School Superintendent Dixon was absent from the city. However, a little matter like that did not stand in the way of Mrs. Dixon and her daughters, Misses Adele and Martha Ann, showing the distinguished visitors over the new vocational and auditorium buildings. They expressed themselves as being well pleased with what they saw and when Mrs. Dixon assured them that the people of Elba appreciate what the Administration has done for their schools and city, one of the gentlemen hit the nail on the head when he said that the real credit must go to the taxpayers, as they are the ones who will have to foot the bills in the final analysis.

STATE SENATOR—J. H. Singleton, editor of The Enterprise Ledger, expresses my sentiments in an editorial boost of our townsmen, J. O. English, for State Senator. Mr. Singleton's endorsement is reprinted on page two of this issue. Coffee County, according to custom, is entitled to furnish the candidate for State Senator from this district at the coming primary, and I heartily agree with what Mr. Singleton says about Mr. English, for I know of no gentleman who is better qualified to fill that important office.

ANOTHER HOT SPELL—Following several days of comparatively comfortable weather, especially in the late afternoon and nights, we are again in the throes of a heated spell. On Saturday Sunday, Monday and Tuesday in charge of a man like Prof. Thompson's about town have registered 100 or above each of late and there seems to be no prospect of relief.
